Notes

(1) Revenues

- Management has projected AHCL's revenues to grow at a CAGR of 22.0%, from ~INR 17,110 million in FY25 to ~INR 46,264 million by FY30. The growth is expected to be driven by:
  - Strengthening the presence in core markets, increasing penetration into newer markets, a higher focus on organic growth and brand-building initiatives, and improved surgical conversions;
  - Premiumization efforts with a push towards high-end cataract surgeries;
  - Management expects the trend of increasing share of organized players to continue, considering the current industry mix of organized vs. unorganized players (as per a CRISIL report dated January 2025, as of 2024, the share of organized players is only 13–15%);
  - Favorable macro tailwinds — rising per capita income and increasing prevalence of lifestyle-linked eye disorders.

(2) EBITDA Margin

- EBITDA margin is expected to improve to 24.3% by FY30 driven by operational efficiencies.

Note

(1) Revenues

- AEHL's revenues are expected to grow at a CAGR of 20.6% from ~INR 3,972 million in FY25 to ~INR 10,140 million by FY30, driven by:
  - continued network expansion, sustained marketing efforts, improved surgical conversions, and deeper market penetration within Tamil Nadu, where it primarily operates;
  - relocation of AEHL's flagship Chennai facility to a larger premise by FY27 is expected to drive higher footfalls;
  - premiumization efforts with a push towards high-end cataract surgeries;
  - favourable macro tailwinds - rising per capita income and increasing prevalence of lifestyle-linked eye disorders.

(2) EBITDA Margin

- EBITDA margin is expected to expand from 24.1% in FY25 to 26.5% in FY26. However, EBITDA margin in FY27 is projected to temporarily decline to 24.9% due to higher expenses following the launch of AEHL's relocated Chennai facility.
- EBITDA margin is expected to recover and improve to 27.2% by FY30, driven by operational efficiencies.

Notes on Enterprise Value to Equity Value adjustments:

1. AHCL has been valued on a consolidated basis, including all its subsidiaries. Non-controlling interests (“NCI”) in AEHL, Dr Thind Eye Care Private Limited, and Aditya Jyot Eye Hospital Private Limited have been appropriately considered while arriving at the equity value of AHCL. NCI in Orbit Health Care Services Madagascar SARL, Orbit Health Care Services Mozambique Limitada, Elisar Life Sciences Private Limited and IdeaRX Services Private Limited have been considered nil, given their Nil / minimal operations.
2. Debt and debt like items primarily comprise borrowings (including current maturities and interest accrued), capital creditors, redemption liability (for Dr Thind Eye Care Private Limited (“TECPL”)), acquisition liability, retention money payable, unpaid dividend and other financial liabilities.
3. NCI in AEHL has been determined based on the fair value per share of AEHL and the number of shares not held by AHCL.
4. We note that AHCL held 75.5% in Aditya Jyot Eye Hospital Private Limited as at 31 March 2024 and has additionally acquired 12.25% stake during FY25 for INR 62.5 million, bringing its effective shareholding to 87.75% as at 30 June 2025. The remaining 12.25% stake is expected to be acquired for the same amount, as per Management.

5. Contingent liability represents the probability adjusted outflow relating to the pending direct tax, indirect tax and consumer litigation claims.
6. Surplus assets comprise investments in mutual funds, capital advances, interest accrued on deposits, tax assets (net) and call option asset (for TECPL).
7. We understand from management that AHCL has granted 24,48,819 employee stock options (ESOPs). Accordingly, we have considered the fully diluted share count along the expected cash inflow based on the exercise price of these options under income approach and CCM method.

Notes

1. Capital Asset Pricing Model ("CAPM") used for estimation of the Cost of Equity. For the purpose of estimating beta for AHCL, we have considered a broader set of guideline companies operating chain of single speciality and multi-speciality hospital chains in India. However, certain companies have been excluded as betas lacked statistical significance.

| Particulars                  | Input        | Basis  |
|------------------------------|--------------|--|
| Risk free rate (Rf)          | 6.6%         | 1-month average zero coupon yield on 10-year Indian Government securities              |
| Market Risk Premium (Rp)     | 7.0%         | Based on PwC estimates   |
| Unlevered beta               | 0.90         | Unlevered Beta based on average/median of guideline companies                          |
| Debt-Equity ratio (DER)      | 5.0%         | Based on average/median of guideline companies, in conjunction with AHCL's implied DER |
| Re-levered beta (B)          | 0.95         | The beta re-levered using selected Debt-Equity Ratio                                   |
| Cost of debt (post-tax) (Kd) | 6.2%         | AHCL's post-tax cost of debt is calculated considering a marginal tax rate of 25.2%    |
| Cost of Equity (Ke)          | 13.2%        | Cost of Equity = Rf + B (Rp)   |
| WACC (rounded)        | 13.0% | WACC = (Kd * D/E + Ke) / (1 + D/E)  |

2. Terminal growth rate has been considered at 6% based on macroeconomic factors in India. Considering the projected revenue growth rate of ~22% in FY30, as per Management, and expectations of sustained growth beyond FY30, the terminal value has been computed assuming that the growth rate will fall linearly after the explicit period (i.e., FY30 in this case) towards the terminal growth rate, over a defined period (i.e., 20 years in this case). A 20-year period has been considered for AHCL, as it is expected to have a long growth runway beyond FY30, supported by overall industry growth (driven by macroeconomic and demographic factors), the ongoing shift toward organized players, and planned geographic expansion within India.
3. Normalized levels for capex includes both maintenance capex (based on the inflation adjusted gross block and the average life of assets) along with estimated growth capex for the extended period; normalized depreciation considered equal to normalized capex. Normalised levels of Net Working Capital considered same as FY30 levels (as % of revenues).
4. Considering that cash flows accrue uniformly throughout the year, we have applied a mid-period discounting factor.

Notes

1. Under the CCM method, considering the paucity of publicly listed hospitals in India focusing exclusively on eye care services, we have relied on the trading multiples of single speciality and multi-speciality hospital chains operating in India, taking into account the size and other operating performance of AHCL. Considering that AHCL is profitable with reasonably stable EBITDA margins, we have relied on the Enterprise Value/EBITDA multiple. Our selection criteria were as follows:

- Trailing Twelve Months revenues as at 30 June 2025 (“TTM revenues”) more than ~INR 10,000 million, considering AHCL’s FY25 revenues of ~INR 17,110 million;
  - FY21 to FY25 revenue growth CAGR of more than 20%, considering AHCL’s FY21 to FY25 revenue growth CAGR of ~38%; and
  - FY21 to FY25 average EBITDA margin (post adjusting for lease rentals) of more than 15%; considering AHCL’s FY21 to FY25 adjusted EBITDA margins average of ~18%.
2. Though AHCL is smaller in size (in revenue terms) than the average/median of the comparable company set, its projected revenue growth over FY26–FY28 is marginally higher than the average / median consensus revenue estimates of the selected guideline companies. Considering the above in conjunction, selected multiple is based on median/average multiple of the comparable companies. EV/EBITDA multiple of 36.0x has been considered, based on the 10-day and 90-day average/median trading multiples.

Notes on Enterprise Value to Equity Value adjustments:

1. Debt and debt like items primarily comprise borrowings (including current maturities and interest accrued), capital creditors, retention money payable, acquisition liability, income tax provision and unpaid dividend.
2. Contingent liability represents the probability adjusted outflow relating to the pending indirect tax and consumer litigation claims.
3. Surplus assets comprise investments in mutual funds, capital advance, interest accrued on deposits and tax assets.
4. We understand that AEHL proposes to raise ~INR 700 million from AHCL by issuing 1,32,827 shares at a price of INR 5,270 per share on preferential basis, ahead of the Proposed Amalgamation.

Notes

- Capital Asset Pricing Model used for estimation of the Cost of Equity. For the purpose of estimating beta for AEHL, we have considered a broader set of guideline companies operating chain of single speciality and multi-speciality hospitals in India. However, certain companies have been excluded as betas lacked statistical significance.

| Particulars                  | Input        | Basis  |
|------------------------------|--------------|--|
| Risk free rate (Rf)          | 6.6%         | 1-month average zero coupon yield on 10-year Indian Government securities              |
| Market Risk Premium (Rp)     | 7.0%         | Based on PwC estimates   |
| Unlevered beta               | 0.90         | Unlevered Beta based on average/median of guideline companies                          |
| Debt-Equity ratio (DER)      | 5.0%         | Based on average/median of guideline companies, in conjunction with AEHL's implied DER |
| Re-levered beta (B)          | 0.95         | The beta re-levered using selected Debt-Equity Ratio                                   |
| Cost of debt (post-tax) (Kd) | 6.5%         | AEHL's post-tax cost of debt is calculated considering a marginal tax rate of 25.2%    |
| Cost of Equity (Ke)          | 13.2%        | Cost of Equity = Rf + B (Rp)   |
| WACC (rounded)        | 13.0% | WACC = (Kd * D/E + Ke) / (1 + D/E)  |

2. Terminal growth rate has been considered at 6% based on macroeconomic factors in India. Considering the projected revenue growth rate of 19.5% in FY30, as per Management, and expectations of sustained growth beyond FY30, the terminal value has been computed assuming that the growth rate will fall linearly after the explicit period (i.e., FY30 in this case) towards the terminal growth rate, over a defined period (i.e., 5 years in this case). A 5-year period has been considered for AEHL, as it is expected to maintain high growth beyond FY30 through deeper penetration in Tamil Nadu. However, given its geographic concentration and substantial pre-existing presence, a shorter high-growth period considered relative to AHCL.
3. Normalized levels for Capex includes both maintenance capex (based on the Inflation adjusted gross block and the average life of assets) along with estimated growth capex for the extended period; normalized depreciation considered equal to normalized capex. Normalised levels of Net Working Capital considered same as FY30 levels (as % of revenues).
4. Considering that cash flows accrue uniformly throughout the year, we have applied a mid-period discounting factor.

Notes

1. Under the CCM method, considering the paucity of publicly listed hospitals in India focusing exclusively on eye care services, we have relied on the trading multiples of single speciality and multi-speciality hospital chains operating in India, taking into account the size and other operating performance of AEHL. Considering that AEHL is profitable with reasonably stable EBITDA margins, we have relied on the Enterprise Value/EBITDA multiple. Our selection criteria were as follows:
  - TTM revenues between INR 1,000 million and INR 15,000 million, considering AEHL's FY25 revenues of ~INR 3,972 million;
  - FY21 to FY25 revenue growth CAGR of more than 20%, considering AEHL's FY21 to FY25 revenue growth CAGR of ~30%; and
  - FY21 to FY25 average EBITDA margin (post adjusting for lease rentals) of more than 15%; considering AEHL's FY21 to FY25 adjusted EBITDA margins average of ~22%.
2. Though AEHL is smaller in size (in revenue terms) than the average/median of the comparable company set, its historical and projected revenue growth over FY26–FY28 is broadly comparable to the average/median consensus revenue estimates of the selected guideline companies and its projected EBITDA margins (average) over FY26–FY28 are marginally higher than the average/median consensus EBITDA margin estimates of the selected guideline companies. Considering the above in conjunction, selected multiple is based on median/average multiple of the comparable companies. EV/EBITDA multiple of 25.0x has been considered, based on the 10-day and 90-day average/median trading multiples.
