Why some investors want their money locked away

TRUTH BE TOLD
HARSH ROONGTA

Our domestic staff, Shankar, had been with us for many years. When his daughter was born, he said, “I want her to be able to study whatever she wants, without money coming in the way. Please deduct ₹2,000 from my salary every month and invest it for her education. Do not give it back to me, even if I ask, until she turns 18.”

Shankar was describing the product he needed: an automatic monthly investment before the money reached his bank account, long-term growth and a lock-in until the investments were needed.

People with limited financial resources often value two forms of protection: saving before the money reaches them and restricting access to it afterwards. Otherwise, emergencies, family obligations and immediate spending can steadily erode their savings. The middle class faces a milder version of the same problem and benefits from the same protections. Automatic saving turns a monthly decision into a one-time choice; a lock-in protects the accumulated amount thereafter.

India has already seen how powerful this combination can be. The Employees’ Provident Fund Organisation (EPFO) has nearly eight crore subscribers and assets of about ₹28 lakh crore. Contributions are deducted from salaries, matched by employers and remitted to EPFO. They remain largely locked in until retirement. The corpus would have been far smaller if employees had first received the money and then had to invest it every month, or could easily withdraw it before retirement.

EPFO achieved this scale not only through automatic contributions and the lock-in of accumulated savings, but also through compulsory enrolment and high contribution levels. Its experience therefore offers two different lessons. Automatic saving and lock-in are powerful tools for building and preserving savings. But compulsory enrolment can turn the same lock-in from protection into a trap, especially when poor administration makes legitimate withdrawals difficult and limited investment choices reduce returns.

That structure is now changing because the required contributions from employers and employees have been reduced to ₹1,800 a month each. Employees may contribute more, but employers need not match the additional contribution. Money once diverted automatically into the Employees’ Provident Fund (EPF) may now reach employees as salary. They may spend this additional cash or direct it into other savings.

One option for employees who want to continue saving for retirement is the National Pension System (NPS). It offers voluntary enrolment, automatic salary deduction, lock-in and investment choice. But it does not solve Shankar’s problem: he needed the same combination for his daughter’s education.

A voluntary “goal-maturity mutual fund” could let investors like Shankar choose a maturity date, invest automatically every month and redeem only after that date. It could offer the investment choices and low costs of mutual funds, with contributions deducted from salary before reaching the bank account.

Much of this structure already exists. Close-ended mutual fund schemes have a fixed maturity date and cannot ordinarily be redeemed before then. Currently, they cannot accept fresh subscriptions after the initial offer closes. The regulator should consider changing this to allow fresh investments to continue until maturity. Investors who need the money earlier can still sell the units on an exchange through a demat and broking account. This deliberately inelegant exit preserves emergency liquidity without making the savings easy to spend.

Truth be told, I could not find a product for Shankar that combined 100 per cent equity investment, automatic saving and a meaningful lock-in. So I arranged a systematic investment plan (SIP) in an equity fund timed to his salary date. He did not know how to withdraw the money without my help and asked me to remind him of his original decision if he sought the money early. His dependence on me became a jugsad substitute for the lock-in the product lacked. Had a goal-maturity fund existed then, none of this would have been necessary. Shankar — and millions like him — could have chosen how much to save, when the money should become available and where it should be invested, and then left the product to carry out those choices. Enrolment would have been voluntary, the saving automatic and the lock-in real — not jugsad.

Two routes to global investing, distinct sets of tax rules

Foreign assets must be disclosed in the ITR even if they generated no income

SANJEEV SINHA

Indian investors increasingly invest in international mutual funds from Indian asset management companies (AMCs) or buy foreign securities under the Liberalised Remittance Scheme (LRS). The two routes follow distinct income-tax return (ITR) rules.

Rules for funds from Indian AMCs Indian AMCs offer international equity funds and international debt schemes. These schemes do not qualify as equity-oriented mutual funds because they invest less than 65 per cent in domestic equities.

“Most of them are treated as specified mutual funds under Section 50AA of the Income-tax (I-T) Act. Gains on units held for up to 24 months are taxed as short-term capital gains at the investor’s applicable slab rate. Gains on units held for more than 24 months are taxed as long-term capital gains at 12.5 per cent (plus surcharge and cess), without indexation benefits,” says Shubham Jain, director, SVAS Business Advisors. Investors need not report these investments in Schedule FA of the ITR. “Any capital gains arising from the sale or redemption of these units must be disclosed under the Capital Gains Schedule,” says Jain. Such investors cannot use ITR-1 and should file ITR-2. Those with business or professional income should file ITR-3.

“Any dividend or income distribution received from these schemes should be reported under the head ‘Income from Other Sources,’” says Neeraj Agarwala, senior partner, Nangia & Co.

Retain supporting records Investors should retain capital gains and distribution statements; the Consolidated Account Statement (CAS); bank and expense records; income computations; Form 26AS; and the Annual Information Statement (AIS). Agarwala says they should retain these for at least eight years, or longer if an assessment or litigation remains pending.

Avoid errors in the return Investors should match the AIS with fund statements and broker records because it may misstate acquisition costs or transfer expenses. They should report capital losses by the due date to carry them forward for up to eight assessment years. “Another frequent error is clubbing all capital gains together instead of reporting short-term and long-term gains separately. Accurate classification is essential for correct tax computation,” says Agarwala.

Choose right ITR for LRS investments Resident and ordinarily resident (ROR) individuals who hold foreign shares, mutual funds or exchange-traded funds (ETFs) should generally file ITR-2, or ITR-3 if they earn business or professional income. “ITR-1 and ITR-4 cannot be used, as they do not allow reporting of foreign assets or foreign-source income,” says Akhil Chandna, partner and global people solutions leader, Grant Thornton Bharat. Chandna adds that reportable foreign assets must be disclosed even if they generated no income or were not sold during the year.

Disclose foreign assets in Schedule FA ROR taxpayers must disclose foreign brokerage accounts, shares, mutual funds, ETFs and reportable cash bal-

Tax norms for GIFT City outbound funds

- Short-term holding period: Up to 24 months
- Short-term tax rate: 30 per cent, plus surcharge and cess
- Long-term holding period: More than 24 months
- Long-term tax rate: 12.5 per cent, plus surcharge and cess
- Dividend and interest tax rate: 30 per cent, plus surcharge and cess
- Tax payable by investor: Generally no additional capital gains tax on redemption, as the scheme pays the tax and adjusts it in the net asset value
- ITR reporting: Report redemption gains under Schedule Exempt Income

ances, along with the country, acquisition cost and income earned. “Schedule FA follows the calendar year (ending December 31), unlike the rest of the ITR, which follows the financial year. Foreign currency values should be converted into rupees using the State Bank of India’s Telegraphic Transfer Buying Rate (TTBR) under Rule 115. Exchange-rate records should be retained,” says Chandna.

Residents must report foreign dividends, fund distributions and interest on overseas brokerage balances under ‘Income from Other Sources’. They must also disclose the related assets and income in Schedule FA, where applicable.

Apply the correct tax rates Investors have to pay tax at slab rates on gains from foreign shares held for up to 24 months. Gains after 24 months attract long-term capital gains tax at 12.5 per cent under Section 112, without indexation. “Foreign mutual funds and ETFs acquired under the LRS route are also taxed as foreign capital assets, although the exact tax treatment depends on the nature of the underlying investment,” says Chandna.

Carry forward losses correctly Investors must report foreign-asset losses in the Capital Gains Schedule. Short-term losses can offset short-term and long-term gains, while long-term losses can offset only long-term gains. “Unabsorbed losses can be carried forward for up to eight assessment years, provided the return is filed within the due date under Section 139(1),” says Chandna. Investors should retain broker statements, contract notes and foreign exchange records to support their tax computations.

Claim foreign tax credit Double Taxation Avoidance Agreements (DTAAs) seek to prevent two countries from taxing the same income. “A taxpayer who is a tax resident of India can claim credit for taxes paid or withheld overseas by furnishing supporting documents, such as a tax withholding statement, tax deduction certificate or a copy of the foreign tax return, along with the prescribed compliance requirements,” says Aarti Raote, partner, Deloitte India.

Avoid penalties for non-disclosure ROR taxpayers must disclose reportable foreign assets, including overseas properties, shares, funds, bank accounts, retirement funds and trusts, even if they generate no taxable income. “Failure to disclose foreign assets with an aggregate value exceeding ₹20 lakh may attract a penalty of ₹10 lakh under the Black Money (Undisclosed Foreign Income and Assets) and Imposition of Tax Act, 2015,” says Raote.
